Footer Test, Part One

Footer Test, Part Two

The second page repeats the same footer with a different page number. Listen to the moment this paragraph ends and the next page begins. You should go straight from the last sentence here to the heading of part three, with nothing in between: no download date, no page number, no running title.

Footer Test, Part Three

This is the last page. When it finishes, the item should simply end. If the whole file played without any mention of downloads or page numbers, the check passes.
